The customer will not provide us with the tool for automatic generation of services on the base of annotated requirements.

We have negotiated with the client that we can use technologies of our choice to build the application, i.e. we should not stick to Java, as it was required before.

We have created the presentation of the requirements, technologies and envisioned architecture, which will be presented on 11.11.2014

We have decided details around the requirements and the user interface we foresee, which are outlined in the requirements document and in the created presentation.
